What this means

This property is heritage-listed at local, state, or national level. Heritage listing imposes significant restrictions on demolition, alteration, and additions; typically requiring a heritage-impact statement from a qualified consultant and approval from the relevant heritage authority before works commence. Even minor changes (paint colour, fencing, window replacement) may require consent. Property values can be affected in either direction: heritage listing signals character and long-term protection to some buyers, while others discount for the added compliance burden. The specific listing register and its scope (e.g. facade only, whole-of-building, curtilage) determines which works are captured. MapMyLot reports the listing and does not subtract it from the unconstrained area, because it needs approval rather than banning building.
